WAS IT GIN OR DYNAMITE?

Government Officers Still Assert that Gibson, of the Whiskey Trust, Plotted to Destroy the Shufeldt Distillery.

HE ASSERTS HIS INNOCENCE.

Conflicting Statements Regarding the Nature of the Liquid Found in the Accused's Satchel.

IBY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD. CHICAGO, Feb. 12, 1891,-The United States officers persist in their assertion that they have a strong case against Secretary Gibson of the whiskey trust. Gibson's friends have now recovered from the shock and are standing stanchly by the ac-

Gibson has, if the charges against him are true, rendered himself liable under two charges-bribery and the handling of explosive matter intended to be used in the destruction of life and property. He cannot be indicted for conspiracy. THE ALLEGED PLOT.

Inspector Dewar, who led Gibson on, could not be classed as a conspirator. Dewar, it is alleged, was given a death dealing machine at the Grand Pacific Hotel some ten days ago. This, it is charged, was to be used in setting fire to the distillery. Since that time he has received several letters from albson, in which the plot was vaguely hinted at, but plainly enough, it is said, to constitute convincing evidence against him. The machine given Dewar comprises a gun barrel, containing gunpowder and a steel ball. One end of the gun barrel was thrust into an oyster can filled with shavings and rammed tightly, the shavings being saturated with some liquid which would burn easily. These shavings were to be set on fire by emptying an explosive liquid upon them. The moment the fames touched the gunpowder it would explode, driving the ball into one of the great high proof spirit tanks. The distillery would have been ablaze in an instant.

great high proof spirit tanks. The distillery would have been ablaze in an instant.

The man who is alleged to have made the infernal machine is said to be a machinist at Peoria. No criminal intent attaches to him, but he will be taken into custody to secure his testimony.

Dewar has been taken out of town to save his life, Mr. Hart said this evening, as it is charged the whiskey trust people would not hesitate to have him killed.

The strangest thing about the affair is that no one but Secretary Gibson is implicated. The burden of proof rests with Dewar and the incriminating letters Gibson is said to have sent him, together with the infernal machine and explosive liquid.

Gibson's son said this morning the stuff was Schiedam schnapps, but Commissioner Hoyne told me this afternoon that when he asked Gibson himself about it he said it was a liquid with which he had been experimenting.

H. H. Shufeldt, one of the proprietors of the distillery in question, said he had heard nothing of the plot to blow up his place.

The contents of the grip were a shirt, a few collars, a bottle of liquid and one hundred shares of whiskey trust suck assigned to Dewar.

"It was part of the deal to pay Dewar in part with stock," said Hart, "and he evidently brought the bonds to show Dewar and spur him on to do the deed."

A reputable man whom I saw to-day said he saw the bottle taken from Gibson's satchel, uncorked ft and smelled of its contents. "It will swear it was Holland gin and nothing else," said he, "I wanted to take it, but they wouldn't let me. I was willing to take all risks."

GIBSON SAYS HE IS INNOCENT.

PEORIA, Ill., Feb. 12, 1891 .- George Gibson arrived here last night from Chicago and has been at the trust beadquarters all day. He denies that he is guilty of the charge brought against him, and says that, while he is not yet ready to make a public statement, when he ferrets out the whole thing the affair will assume a different aspect. He says the liquid was a medicinal wash. "SUR TANTIALLY TRUE" WASHINGTON, Feb. 12, 1891 .- Mr. Mason, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, is evidently much worried over the alleged Chicago whiskey conspiracy and denied himself to callers to-day. He left instructions with his private secretary to tell all newspaper men who might call that he had nothing to say about the alleged conspiracy except that the Associated Press despatch from Chicago, published in the morning papers, was substantially true according to the information received by him.

President Greenhut, of the whiskey trust, is in-clined to be sceptical, but says if the reports are true the trust wants to know it, as it would not countenance such action.

"Luciy" Hanns is only lucky through the first two acts of the play. In the third act he discovers that Midel, the pretty girl to whom he was betrothed, loves Sopp. And when Sepp soon after falls down a precipice and calls for help Hanns is sorely tempted to desert him and so rid himself of his rival.

But his better nature gets the mastery and he saves seppl. Nay, more than that. Finding he has not the piace he hoped in Midei's heart, he withdraws his claim on the maid, who is allowed to be happy with the man of her choice. And at the close of the story he is not miserable, for he has done his duty.

close of the story he is not miserable, for he has done his duty.

Max Hofpauer, dropping dialect for a time, appeared last night in the part of a very unherole Berliner, who, like Tartarin, earns undeserved repute as a scaler of Alpine fastnesses.

Karl Ernst made a powerful and manly Hanns, while Emil Höfer was a rather feeble Sopp.

The Midle of Frl. Kathi Thaller was wonderfully fresh and true, though it did not differ sensibly from some other characters in which we have seen the actress.

MORE MUSIC BY AMERICANS.

The second concert of the American Composers' Choral Association was given in Chickering Hall last evening. At the first concert there was an excess of orchestral numbers and orchestral playing. At last evening's concert the lack of orchestral music, together with the uniformity of the vocal selections, robbed the programme of all brilliancy and left it

A chorus from that bright and versatile Boston ian, Mr. George W. Chadwick, was the first number "The Pilgrims" was its title, and appropriately ponderous and unwieldy was the music. Coming from the pen of one of America's daintiest writers it proved to be the saddest of disappointments.

Unfortunately this first number struck the keynote of all that followed. The two little a capella numbers by Mr. Bruno Oscar Klein were sung more heavily than their composer ever intended them to be sung and what beauty they possessed was load.

The other choral numbers were selections from Mr. J. C. D. Parker's "St. John," "From Heaven the Thunders Rear" by Mr. Frederick Brandels, a "Barcarole" by Mr. E. A. MacDowell, "Where the Tizra's Torreuts" by Mr. Francis Korbay and a humorous legend entitled "Going to St. Ives" by Mr. O. B. Brown, of Boston.

In none of the works presented did the chorus do itself or the work justice. Insufficient rehearsnis, I was told, was the cause of certain breaks in some of the selections.

Mr. Victor Herbert was the selects, and right eleverly did he redeem the concert by his good playing of his own "Berceuse" and "Petite Valse," and in Mr. Shelley's concerto.

The audience, as is usual at those invitation musicales, filled and overflowed the hall. Hivai musicians glared at one another from adjacent seats, and Dame Society was omnipresent.

HARRY PEPPER'S BALLAD CONCERT.

Mr. Harry Pepper gave his third ballad concert in Hardman Hall last evening. The hall was well filled and the popular programme was thoroughly appreciated by the listeners.

A banjo solo by Mr. Ruby Brooks, ballads by Miss Zeima Rawlinson, an operatic selection by Miss Evelina Labelle, a violin solo by Mr. David Bimberg, a sketch by Mr. Walter Pelham, a "Dickens recitation" by Mr. John Ince and piano solos by Mr. W. W. Sawitz added materially to Mr. Pepper's own numbers.

MR. FRENCH'S NEW THEATRE.

Mr. T. Henry French, the manager of the Grand Opera House and the Garden Theatre, said last night that the rumors that he is to have a new theatre in this city are not without foundation. "Mr. Samuel French, my father," said he, "Is at present on his way over on the Etruria to see about it. Our plan is to build a theatre on upper Broadway. The house in view is not unlike the Grand Opera House and is to have the same spacious lobies. Anything more about it I cannot tell you just at present."

Which we are to see on Monday next at the Garden Theatre, differs from Miss Fanny Davenport's in one or two important de-The storm and invocation in the fourth act are cut in Mme. Bernhardt's dition, and the "Nitocris" scene in the fourth act is omitted. The Davenport edition sticks to the original text of Sardore, which was modified in Paris in deference to Mme. Bernhard's objections to it on the score of dramatic consistency. The play, as we shall have it at the Garden Theatre, will be identical with the Porte Saint-Martin version.

OBITUARY.

MUSURU PACHA.

A cable despatch from Constantinople announces the death of Constantine Musurus Pacha, the well known Turkish diplomatist, who was born at Constantinople on February 18, 1807. His father was a Cretan of a noble family, and Musurus was carefully educated, being in particular a remarkable linguist. He began his diplomatic career in 1832 as secretary to the Prince of Samos, and the following year visited Samos as member of a pacific commission. The commission failed in its purpose, but Musurus atterward succeeded, and was made Governor of the island. In 1840 he was sant as Envoy Extraordinary to Athens, whence he was recalled in 1848 to represent Turkey at the Court of Austria, and in 1851 was appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenip itentiary at London. He continued in London until 1885, being promoted to be Ambassador and given the rank of Muchir and title of Pacha. He was succeeded by Rustem Pacha and returned to Constantinople, where he was decorated with orders of the first class of the Osmanic and Medidie. secretary to the Prince of Samos, and the HENRY EVERETT MERRIAM. Mr. Henry Everett Merriam died at his home, No. 312 Fifth avenue, at noon yesterday, of throat and lung trouble, after an illness of about six months. Mr. Merriam, who was forty-six years old, returned a week ago from the Adirondacks, where he had been staying for his health. Since where he had been staying for his health. Since that time he had been confined to his bed. Mr. Merriam was born in this city in 1845. He began business as a member of the firm of R. W. Merriam & Co., of which his father was senior partner. On the death of the latter Mr. Merriam assumed the senior partnership, which he retained until three years sg., when he retired. Mr. Merriam was a member of the Union League and Republican clubs, both of whose flags were at haif mast yesterday out of respect to his memory. He was also a member of Rev. Dr. Parker's (Madison Avenue Frasbyterian) church.

Marvin Canniff, a prominent lawyer and republican politician of Binghamton, N. Y., died en Tuesday, of pneumonia, aggravated by overwork, aged fifty-six years. He was born at Greene, Chenango county, of humble parentage, and his education was limited to that obtainable in the common schools. In his youth obtainable in the common schools. In his youth he learned the trade of a carpenter. When twenty-one years old he was elected Justice of the Peace of the town of Fenton, where he then resided, and he was afterward elected Supervisor for three terms, serving at one time as president of the Brooms county Board of Supervisors. Meantime he pursued a course of study for the Bar, and was admitted to practice in 1876. He was elected president of the Binghamton City Council in 1880. He was first chosen City Attorney in 1887, and at his death was serving a second term.

John W. Towt, one of Nyack's most revered citizens, died yesterday at his home, after a few weeks' fliness, in the eighty-ninth year of his age, of a complication of diseases. Mr. Towt accumu lated a fortune in the saddlery and harness business in Spruce street, where his son Louis succeeded in sprace street, where his son Louis succeeded him many years are. During the war Mr. Towt was interested in the "underground railway" for fleeing slaves, and his home was one of the stations. His love for the colored race led to great benevolence in their behalf. He founded their church in Nyack and was its main support. His gifts to the Methodist Church amount to a large fortune.

ELDER JAMES L. PHILLIPS.

Elder James L. Phillipps, the oldest man in Warwick, R. I., who died a few lays ago at the age of ninety-one, was buried yesterday without prayer or ceremony of any kind. He was at one time pastor of the First Free Baptist Church of Newport, but he suddenly became an agnostic, retired from the pulpit and became a recluse. Previous to his death he directed that no religious service be held over his remains; that they be placed in a cheap box of rough boards and conveyed to their resting place in the family express wagon in which his mother was carried to her grave.

PREDERICK W. PARROTT.

Mr. F. W. Parrott, who was born eighty-five years ago in Bridgeport, died there Thursday in the house where he first saw the light. He was the oldest furniture manufacturer in that city, having begun in 1827, and probably the oldest in New begin in 1821, and probably the closes in New England. He made the first hearse and the first sofa ever known in Bridgeport. In 1840 he began the manufacture of varnishes and possessed a secret in the combination of materials known only to those associated with him. The deceased at one time was a member of the Road and Bridge Commission, which did so much for Bridgeport.

HARRY Y. JOHNSON. Assistant City Treasurer Harry Young Johnson, of Newark, died at the residence of his father, No. 1,000 Broad street, late on Wednesday night from bronchitis and pulmonary troubles, which were fast developing into consumption. He was a very popular young man and had been in the city's employ for five years, being at the time of his death about twenty-nine years old. The city employes passed resolutions of condolence yesterday.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Hon, R. D. Wilmot, ex-Governor of New Bruns-wick, died at his country seat, Gromocto, N. B., yes terday after a short illness.

Mrs. Theodore French, whose reputed age was 105 years, died of old age at her home in Syracuse, N. Y., yesterday. Little is known of her early life by her children except that she was born in Providence, R. I.

Mr. Edward Roelkey, late Chief Grain Inspector at the Corn and Flour Exchange, Baltimore, died yesterday, after a lingering filness. He was in the grain commission business many years as a member of the firm of Roelkey and Bushey, Upon the establishment of the exchange about nineteen years ago Mr. Roelkey became connected with it as grain inspector. He leaves a widow.

BOSTON SOCIAL AND LITERARY CELEBRITIES HAVE AN IDRA THAT THEY WERE "IM-

[BY TPLEGRAPH 70 THE HERALD.] Boston, Feb. 12, 1891.—The American Folk-Lore ociety, or rather its Boston branch, took a day off to-day, and, with an accompanying party of literary and social celebrities, made an excursion into the mysterious realms of the Chinese drama. Just what they saw-whether a drama or an opera-they do not know, and the subject with which the actors were struggling was, in all but its bare outlines, an enigma; but all mouths were open in smiles or in wonder from beginning to

The affair took place in the Chinese theatre, a cavernous auditorium in the cellar of a Harrison avenue hotel, and the performers were a score of Chinese actors who are passing their New Year's holidays here with friends.

CELEBRITIES PRESENT. In this dimly lighted, chilly room, seated on pine benches, was gathered as distinguished an audience as Boston can furnish. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes occupied a conspicuous seat and laughed as heartily as any at the pantomime, though he confessed that he had not the faintest conception of what it was all about. In the solitary private box of the establishment were Mrs. John Gardner and a party of her friends. The English actors, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, sat in gallery seats, while around them and on the floor seats below were William Dean Howells, the novelist; Colonel T. W. Higginson, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Lang, Professor J. W. Putnam, Francis Parkman, the historiau: General Charles J. Loring, Mrs. John Ellerton Lodge, Thomas Niles, Mrs. Mary Hemenwy, Rev. Samuel Longfellow, T. Russell Sullivan, F. Alcott Pratt, Mrs. Augustus Hemenway, Mr. Ladd, of Chaunosy Hall School; Mrs. Joan A. Gray, Professor J. Homans, Walter Fewkes, Mrs. Charles, W. W. Newell, Charles P. Bowditch, Mrs. Clara E. G. Waters, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Biake, Dr. George B. Shattuck, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Dwight, Dr. Walter Channing, Dr. Samuel Greene, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Greenough, Rev. C. C. Everett, Professor Charles E. Fay, Mr. and Mrs. J. Grafton Minot, Dr. C. Augusta Pope, Dana Estes, Franklin Walter, Mr. and Mrs. Ethers Samuel Ellict, Miss Frances B. Johnston, Carleton Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Nevina Mrs. Gideon Scull, Dr and Mrs. Stewart Nevina Mrs. Gideon Scul benches, was gathered as distinguished an audience as Boston can furnish. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes

Aroar of laughter burst forth when, in recognition of an encore, the "hady" sang in Chinese a song which bore a most decided resemblance to our own "Annie Rooney."

The play was descriptive of the experiences of a young heir to the Chinese throne, who, having been deprived of his heritage, succeeds in overthrowing the usurping emperor and regaming his position. Batties, hand to hand encounters with robbers, love making and fêtes crowded each other in an alarming manner.

SEEN ON VASES BEFORE.

Picturesque figures were these actors in their really elegant costumes. More than once some one in the audience whispered to his or her companion as a tableau was formed, "I've seen that on a vase."

The actors represented angels and warriors, emperors and coolles. The doughty general of the army, with the two four foot feathers which spread from his hat, continually tickling the noses of his associates was apparently a formidable fellow in the play, and when he flercely raised his foot and kicked His Imperial Highness the Emperor in the stomach the spectators knew that terrible events were coming, but exactly what no one knew.

The herome, with a flower garden of rosettes in her hat and with cheeks painted as red as an auctioneer's flag, could fight as well as the General, and with her flying swords she valiantly put to flight the noblest warrior of them all.

The comedian had but little oppportunity in this tragedy. He did come forth in one scene with what was apparently a topical song, à la De Wolf Hopper, and it made every one laugh heartily. The uninvited Chinamen on the roof above, who peered down on the stage through the big skylight, found him intensely amusing, and even a few of the stage hands could not refrain from poking their heads through the contains in the rear to watch his antics. The costumes of the leading actors were really marvellous.

A novel scene was that of seven angols in changeable female costumes. They would perform a sort of dance, give a little skip into the air, and in the descent their doub

William Main and James McMasters, not yet twenty years of age, were yesterday sentenced for life for the murder of Benton Huggins at New Martinsville, W. Va.

Joe Depriest, one of the five prisoners who escaped from jail at Fort Smith, Ark., has been recaptured. One of his companions was killed resisting arrest and another recaptured. Curien and Ellis are still at large.

Judge Wilson Lawis of Diracity.

Judge Wilson Lewis, of Pineville, Ky., who has been active in the prosecution of desperadoes in that region, was shot and killed on Wednesday night by his son Sidney, whom he had placed under bond to keep the peace. The Rev. M. Blanton, for a long time a pastor of the Methodist Church at Cave Springs, Ga., has been forced to resign because of an appointment he made with a mulatto girl. The pastor pro-tested he merely wanted to hire her as a cook.

Of the nine negroes charged with the killing of Chief of Police Wells at Dauville, Ky., only two— Pomp Bates and George Ward—have been held for trial for murder. Three of the others received slight fines for carrying weapons and wilful shoot-ing.

Andy Gouda and Steve Hovanus, two Hungarian miners, yesterday got into a quarrel at Mount Pleasant, Pa., and the latter severed the former's jugular with a digger's pick. A second blow drove the pick through Gouda's skull. The murderer escaped.

Thomas Utman, his daughter Lydia and Charles Spinks were arrested resterday at Brockville, Ont., charged with the murder of Oscar Vancamp, on their return from Barnum's circus, at Ogdensburg. N. Y., on the night of August 21, 1880. The arrest was brought about by the unguarded talk of Garres Swaitman, who was of the party, but who is now in Dannemora Prison, N. Y.
